Management Commentary

"The second quarter marked a historic milestone for Honeywell Technologies as we completed the separation of Honeywell Aerospace and began a new era as a leading pure-play automation company. The results we delivered this quarter are the outcome of a year-plus long process to simplify our business, and we are already seeing the benefits of this transformation today. Honeywell Technologies delivered strong organic orders and sales growth, and 100 basis points of segment margin expansion, leading to double digit earnings growth in the second quarter and reinforcing our confidence in the long-term targets that we shared at our recent investor day. As a simplified company, Honeywell Technologies is now positioned to further accelerate profitable growth as we leverage our deep domain expertise and vast installed base to create enduring value for our shareowners," said Vimal Kapur, chairman and chief executive officer of Honeywell Technologies.

2026 Outlook

Honeywell Technologies is updating its full-year outlook after a strong second quarter and improved organic growth fundamentals for process and industrial in the second half. The company now expects full-year sales of $19.8 billion to $20.0 billion with organic¹ sales growth of 3% to 4%, and 4% to 6% organic¹ growth in the second half. The company now expects segment margin¹ in the range of 20.1% to 20.5% with segment margin¹ expansion of 250 to 290 basis points year over year; and adjusted earnings per share¹ in the range of $8.05 to $8.35, up 25% to 29%. Operating cash flow is expected to be approximately $2.1 billion, while free cash flow¹ expectations are unchanged at approximately $2.0 billion for the full year. Guidance incorporates expected results for the acquisition of Johnson Matthey's Catalyst Technologies business, which closed on July 17, 2026, and the expected close of the Productivity Solutions and Services (PSS) and Warehouse and Workflow Solutions (WWS) business divestitures by early August.

Honeywell Aerospace

The former Aerospace Technologies segment now operates independently as Honeywell Aerospace and trades under the ticker symbol "HONA" following its spin-off from Honeywell Technologies on June 29. Consistent with precedent spin-off transactions, Honeywell Aerospace's financial results may differ from Aerospace Technologies financial information for the former segment due to the perimeter of the transaction, allocation of Honeywell Technologies corporate costs, and treatment of intracompany transactions, among other items, for both current and prior reporting periods. Because the creation of carve-out financial statements requires a lengthier closing process, Honeywell Aerospace announced that it will issue its second quarter results on a standalone basis after market close on August 5.

The information below represents results for the former Aerospace Technologies segment on a basis consistent with Honeywell Technologies on a consolidated basis. Please refer to Honeywell Technologies' quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the second quarter of 2026 for information on results for or including the former Aerospace Technologies segment.

In the second quarter, Aerospace Technologies segment sales of $4.5 billion grew 5% organically year over year. Mechanical supply chain showed sequential improvement during the quarter though material supply continued to limit sales growth across end markets. Sales growth was led by a 17% increase in Commercial aviation original equipment due to shipments recoupling to build schedules, particularly in commercial air transport, and a 7% increase in Commercial aviation aftermarket driven by increasing demand from the installed base. Defense and space sales were flat as continued strong demand was constrained by output and program timing. Segment profit grew 2% from the prior year to $1.1 billion, which included approximately $40 million of inventory obsolescence charges related to lower demand for pockets of existing inventory stock driven by emerging repair technologies extending product lives.

Non-GAAP Financial Measures

The following information provides definitions and reconciliations of certain non-GAAP financial measures presented in this press release to which reconciliations are attached to the most directly comparable financial measures calculated and presented in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). The reconciliations include the financial measures on a consolidated Honeywell basis and include adjustments related to the separation of Honeywell Aerospace (the Separation Adjustments). The amounts shown as Separation Adjustments are unaudited and represent our best estimates.

Management believes that, when considered together with reported amounts, these measures are useful to investors and management in understanding our ongoing operations and in the analysis of ongoing operating trends. These measures should be considered in addition to, and not as replacements for, the most comparable GAAP measure. Certain measures presented on a non-GAAP basis represent the impact of adjusting items net of tax. The tax-effect for adjusting items is determined individually and on a case-by-case basis. Other companies may calculate these non-GAAP measures differently, limiting the usefulness of these measures for comparative purposes.

Management does not consider these non-GAAP measures in isolation or as an alternative to financial measures determined in accordance with GAAP. The principal limitations of these non-GAAP financial measures are that they exclude significant expenses and income that are required by GAAP to be recognized in the consolidated financial statements. In addition, they are subject to inherent limitations as they reflect the exercise of judgments by management about which expenses and income are excluded or included in determining these non-GAAP financial measures. Investors are urged to review the reconciliation of the non-GAAP financial measures to the comparable GAAP financial measures and not to rely on any single financial measure to evaluate Honeywell's and Honeywell Technologies' businesses.

As indicated herein, certain forward-looking non-GAAP financial measures are not reconciled because management cannot reliably predict or estimate certain items for the reasons specified herein with respect to each non-GAAP financial measure.

- 1 Includes the financial results of the Honeywell Aerospace business which will be reflected as discontinued operations in the third quarter. These financial results may differ from Aerospace Technologies financial information due to the perimeter of the transaction, allocation of Honeywell Technologies corporate costs, and treatment of intracompany transactions, among other items, for both current and prior reporting periods.

We define organic sales percentage as the year-over-year change in reported sales relative to the comparable period, adjusted for the impact of divestitures to the prior period, and excluding the impact on sales from foreign currency translation, acquisitions for the first 12 months following the transaction date, and certain other items that are unusual or non-recurring in nature. We believe this measure is useful to investors and management in understanding our ongoing operations and in analysis of ongoing operating trends.

A quantitative reconciliation of reported sales percent change to organic sales percent change has not been provided for the forward-looking measure of organic sales percent change because management cannot reliably predict or estimate, without unreasonable effort, the fluctuations in global currency markets that impact foreign currency translation, nor is it reasonable for management to predict the timing, occurrence and impact of acquisition and divestiture transactions, all of which could significantly impact our reported sales percent change.

We define operating income as segment sales less total cost of products and services sold, research and development expenses, selling, general and administrative expenses, impairment of goodwill, and impairment of assets held for sale. We define segment profit, on an overall Honeywell and Honeywell Technologies basis, as operating income, excluding stock compensation expense, pension and other postretirement service costs, amortization of acquisition-related intangibles, certain acquisition- and divestiture-related costs and impairments, repositioning and other charges and the results of Quantinuum. We define segment profit margin, on an overall Honeywell and Honeywell Technologies basis, as segment profit divided by net sales. We believe these measures are useful to investors and management in understanding our ongoing operations and in analysis of ongoing operating trends.

A quantitative reconciliation of operating income to segment profit, on an overall company basis, has not been provided for all forward-looking measures of segment profit and segment profit margin included herein. Management cannot reliably predict or estimate, without unreasonable effort, the impact and timing on future operating results arising from items excluded from segment profit. The information that is unavailable to provide a quantitative reconciliation could have a significant impact on our reported financial results. To the extent quantitative information becomes available without unreasonable effort in the future, and closer to the period to which the forward-looking measures pertain, a reconciliation of operating income to segment profit will be included within future filings.

Acquisition amortization and acquisition- and divestiture-related costs are significantly impacted by the timing, size, and number of acquisitions or divestitures we complete and are not on a predictable cycle and we make no comment as to when or whether any future acquisitions or divestitures may occur. We believe excluding these costs provides investors with a more meaningful comparison of operating performance over time and with both acquisitive and other peer companies.

- 20 Includes consolidated losses of Quantinuum prior to the deconsolidation of the Company's investment in Quantinuum, which does not meet the definition of an operating segment. For the twelve months ended December 31, 2025, the net income adjustment for Quantinuum was $135 million, net of tax benefit of $43 million. The net adjustment also reflects an adjustment to NCI of $78 million for the twelve months ended December 31, 2025.

We define adjusted earnings per share as diluted earnings per share from continuing operations adjusted to exclude various charges as listed above. We believe adjusted earnings per share is a measure that is useful to investors and management in understanding our ongoing operations and in analysis of ongoing operating trends. For forward-looking information, management cannot reliably predict or estimate, without unreasonable effort, pension income or the divestiture-related costs. The pension income is dependent on macroeconomic factors, such as interest rates and the return generated on invested pension plan assets. The divestiture-related costs are subject to detailed development and execution of separation restructuring and simplification plans for the recently completed separation of Honeywell Technologies and Honeywell Aerospace. The equity losses of Quantinuum are based on our proportionate share of Quantinuum's earnings or losses, which are outside of the Company's control. We therefore do not include an estimate for these amounts. Based on economic and industry conditions, future developments, and other relevant factors, these assumptions are subject to change.

Acquisition amortization and acquisition- and divestiture-related costs are significantly impacted by the timing, size, and number of acquisitions or divestitures we complete and are not on a predictable cycle and we make no comment as to when or whether any future acquisitions or divestitures may occur. We believe excluding these costs provides investors with a more meaningful comparison of operating performance over time and with both acquisitive and other peer companies.

¹ Includes the financial results of the Honeywell Aerospace business which will be reflected as discontinued operations in the third quarter. These financial results may differ from Aerospace Technologies financial information due to the perimeter of the transaction, allocation of Honeywell Technologies corporate costs, and treatment of intracompany transactions, among other items, for both current and prior reporting periods.

We define free cash flow as cash provided by operating activities from continuing operations less cash for capital expenditures and excluding spin-off and separation-related cost payments, the Resideo indemnification and reimbursement agreement termination payment, the cash payment for settlement of divestiture of asbestos liabilities, the cash payment for settlement of Flexjet-related litigation matters, and cash flows attributable to Quantinuum.

We believe that free cash flow is a non-GAAP measure that is useful to investors and management as a measure of cash generated by operations that will be used to repay scheduled debt maturities and can be used to invest in future growth through new business development activities or acquisitions, pay dividends, repurchase stock, or repay debt obligations prior to their maturities. This measure can also be used to evaluate our ability to generate cash flow from operations and the impact that this cash flow has on our liquidity.
